DOINGS OF THE DEVOTEES.

The Movements of Omaha's Society Folk For the Past Week.

THE BRILLIANT RECEPTIONS.

The Blessing of Brownell Hall-The Elks' Ball-The Colpetzer Reception-Music and Art Notes.

Omaha Society.

Society has been kept so closely occu pled with entertainments of a general nature the past week, that minor happenings have been overlooked till a lull in the rush of receptions may again bring teas and eard parties into prominence. It is quietly understood that eards will be among the sub rosa indulgences of the Lenten season that is so fast swooping down upon us and the perils of bezique and euchre, not to speak of a quiet game of poker, will again beset those, who for a season have resigned their pet dissipation that they may bask in the approval of the elect. It is doubtful whether the reform based as it is on motives that be ing analyzed prove to be more worldly than the evil it pretends to ery down will last longer than a decade. People bound to awaken to the conviction that life is too short for an enforced martyrdom of reception giving. They may pay due respect to the duly decorous may pay due respect to the duly at proper intervals, but human nature is too human to subsist on the diluted diet that is now being offered for its delectation. The reaction will be so complete and effectual that not even the ungrammatical invectives of all the modern rerivalists put together can check it.

Brownell Hali Reception. The opening of the new Brownell hall Wednesday night was unquestionably the event of the week, and completely overshadowed anything of a social nature that has taken place. The large and beautiful structure, modeled after the Queen Anne style, was brilliantly illuminated, and loomed up grandly for blocks away. The adjacent street was crowded with an endless file of carriages and all surroundings indicated the importance of the occasion. On entering the guests were met by a small usher, Master Windsor Doherty, and directed to the stairway. Numerous young girls, prettily dressed and bearing gaily decorated wands, assisted in ushering the guests to their rooms. They were Miss Gertie Kountze. Miss Louise Doberty, Miss Edith Her, Miss Lorina Huddleston, Miss Annie Johnson, Miss May Her, Miss L. ra Thomp-on, Miss Claire Drake and M ss Mary Linquest.

Descending to the magnificent suite of rooms below the guests were received by Bishop Worthington, the Rev. and Mrs. Doherty, Mrs. Windsor, Mrs. Kountze, Doherty, Mrs. Windsor, Mrs. Konntze, Mrs. Collins diss Lyman, Miss Gillman, Miss May, Miss Wall and Miss Seyer. The teachers were in full evening dress and looked attractive. Mrs. Doherty was most becomingly attired in black velvet en train. The pupils came in for a large share of attention and enjoyed the occasion as only school girls can. Thirty young ladies divided into sets of ten, superintended the reception and refreshment rooms. There was an absence of the stiffness that usually characterizes receptions. There was ample room for all to circulate and the long corridors and parlors were filled with a moving throng of promenaders. Hoffman's orchestra, stationed in one of the corridors played constantly, and many of the younger people could not resist the tempdance. So well entertained was everyone that it was long past midnight before the last guest departed. The gathering included several hundred people, but notwithstanding its numbers the crowd was noticeably of the elite. All the prominent Episcopalians were there, and a sprinkling of other denom inations. The church, the army and the best society in general was well represented, making the most congenial party that has met at any large social gathering this winter. INVOCATION TO BROWNELL HALL. God's blessing on this sylvan shade, With which Brownell is oft arrayed; When southern winds from sunny skies, Bring bud and leaf to gladsome eyes; When song of bird and honey bee, Are blithe and happy as can be.

God's blessing on this hallowed ground, Where wisdom here a home hath found, A second Eden toth appear, The footsteps of the Lord draw near; And when the evening shadows fall, His voice doth through each warder call.

Lord God omnipotent here reign, Bring honor to Thy hallowed name; Protect, defend this sacred shrine Through coming years, through coming time; let greater honors here befall Than ere were dreamed in Locksley Hatl.

No warlike trophies here are hung, No rusty blade to scabbard flung; No Haming sword shall ere be found. Where fruits of righteousness abound; The tree of life, so fair to see, Betokens peace and purity. Of Pison, here the muses sing,

Of ancient Gibon's silver spring; The mighty Hiddekel shall roll, And broad Euphrates crown the whole: hese living streams of life abound Where fruits of Paradise are found.

Fair fountain of perpetual youth, Of grace and beauty, love and truth; A fairer fountain who can tell. Than where our daughters' daughters dwel This hving spring of life we find A second Eden to our mind.

God bless this peaceful, ballowed shade, God bless the matron and the maid; And God bless Robert—bless his face, And God bless Robert—bless his face, And fill his soul with heavenly grace, The faithful priest of Brownell Hall We say God bless you one and all, H. B. BURGESS.

The Elks' Ball.

It is not every child that can give a first annual birthday party by its own individual effort and achieve a grand social success by the triumphant accomplishment of its own suggestions. The Omaha Elks, however, have performed this wonderful feat, and last Monday night their first annual ball was a society event that will be an amaranth among memory's flowers, and the pleasant thoughts of those who participated in its gaities will only grow dim to make way for the glad announcement that the "second birthday" is near at band. But then, the Elks are an order out of the then the Elks are an order out of the usual rule—born in the common good fellowship of honorable young men, they seem to have no infancy, but sprung at once in the strong, hearty, loyal manhood of sociability and benevolence. Here they do not stop, neither do they grow older. The Elks of to-day are the same in every way except numbers as they were at the dawn of organization, and will remain the same at the evening twilight of time. Their social gatherings, whether com-memorative of anniversary events or aron the spur of the moment are invarably delightful occasions-times when all par ticipants have every heart burn removed as if by magic amid pleasant hours that the wish would have perennial.

The Elks ball at the Millard Monday night was one of the social events of the serson. Everything was in the most popular form and the guests represented the leading ladies and gentlemen of this young city. A full report having appeared in the BEE of Tuesday last it is needless to make a repetition now.

The Hyperion Club. The Hyperion gave the fifth of its enjoyable series of parties on last Tuesday night, February 8, at Masonic hall. The event was fully up to the standard of its predecessors, and every feature of it was enjoyed by those present. The Musical Union furnished the music. There have been of late many strange faces seen in and about the hotels, strangers sauntering about the city, well dressed, business like looking, and yet rather mysterious in their actions. Ciriosity has been great as to what they wanted here, what they were going to do and how they were going to do it. In fact there has been much curiosity as to what their business was here. The quiet-ness of the city has been disturbed for-ever, and Council Bluffs finds itself a bustling city, and the fact has leaked out that these strangers are representatives of foreign capital seeking investment. The secret came out by these gentlemen, during the past few days of the week, making a rush for the Benson & Mayne real estate company's office, No. 502 Broadway, and eagerly taking advantage of the great bargains there offered. They had looked about and being convinced that the big bargains were there quickly rushed in to get them. There are still some of the greatest bargains ever offered, the best chances for speculators, the shurest opportunities for permanent paying investments. They still have a number of very cheap pieces of business and recidence property, which will be on sale at their office the com-ing week. Call early and get your advertisement this morning. The ladies of the Cottage hospital cleared $288 by the district school entertainment. It seems that the expenses ran up higher than was expected, still the net proceeds make a snug sum for the young enterprise.

Tired Longs Unload and Send Prices Down With a Rush.

CORN ALSO WEAKER AND LOWER.

Provisions Decline on Large Offerings and But Little Demand-The Cattle Market Unchanged From Friday-Hogs Active.

CHICAGO PRODUCE MARKET.

CHICAGO, Feb. 12,- | Special Telegram to

the BEE. |-Wheat was setive but weak and drooping. Cables were firmer and consuls lower. New York parties bought and shorts filled. The longs were thred of carrying and unloaded, and the large offerings kept prices down. The closings were the inside ligures of the day and show a drop of 114c on the finishing ones of yesterday. The cold weather produced a little strength at the opening. The next "visible" is expected to show a decrease of about 500,000 bushels. May began at 813ce, took a tumble to 70%ce and closed at 79%c. June went from 83%c to May, 25%, Rye-Strong at 50c, Whisky-S1.13, Pork-Easy at $14.00/214.1234, Lard-Steady and unchange 81%c and closed at 81%c. July sold at 84%c down to 825c p February closed at 785ce. March 735ce and April at 745ce. Corn was weaker and ranged lower and had little support except what came from the shorts who were securing profits. The offering of long stuff was heavy, especially at 40c for May, the large lines held for local, New York and western holders having decided to discon-tinue bucking against the bearish current, were large and weil scattered. The demand from local and outside speculators was less urgent, and operators who were credited with being the largest holders appeared rather indifferent and openly lent little or no support to the market and a lower range of prices was established, the last sales showing a decline from yesterday of 10c on mess pork, a decline from yesterday of foc on mess pork, 754c on lard, but no change in short ribs. Mess pork for May opened at $13.90, sold at $13.85 up to $13.95, broke to $13.72\(\frac{1}{4}\) and closed at $13.75. May lard declined from $50.97\(\frac{1}{4}\) to $50.85 and closed at that figure. Short ribs were quiet and stendy at $7.05\(\frac{1}{4}\) Cum, 2:30 p. m.—The feeling was a little firmer on the curb, 80c being bid for May wheat, while corn was quoted at 39%(@30)cc.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

CHICAGO, Feb. 12,-[Special Telegram to the BEE.1-CATTLE-The receipts were light. For the week, however, there is an increase of some 2,500 cattle over last week and 11,000 more than came in doing the corresponding week last year. Friday's cattle market closed dull, weak and 10c lower. Today's prices were generally about the same as yesterday's closing rates.
